

MSN Community Health Nursing

Student Learning Outcomes

Theory	synthesize philosophy, theory, content, and methods of public health science and nursing science as a basis for community health nursing
Clinical Skills	demonstrate advanced clinical skills in society including culturally diverse and/or medically underserved individuals and aggregates
Education	assume beginning roles in education or administration
Health care strategies	design health care strategies in which nurses contribute to the health promotion and disease prevention of individuals and aggregates
Health care issues	evaluate health care issues, trends, and policies
Continuing Education	pursue and evaluate professional development as a continuing professional learner
Healthy People 2010	collaborate with interdisciplinary groups in the community for the purpose of health care planning to achieve the objectives of Healthy People 2010
Foundation	acquire a foundation for doctoral study in nursing
Community Advocate	assume the role of advocate in community settings to promote accessibility of health care services and to enhance quality of care
Social justice	demonstrate a philosophy of nursing that reflects commitment to social justice and the advancement of nursing science
Scientific inquiry	participate in scientific inquiry directed to the health care needs of populations as well as individuals and families