News from the Sustainability Workshop in Peru

In March ACEER sent a group to explore the incredible cities and communities in Peru and to visit the Amazon Rainforest to learn more about sustainability and management of resources. They were able to visit many historical sites such as the Inca city of Machu Picchu, and Cusco, the oldest city in the Americas, while sampling local cuisine and customs. In the article on the ACEER website, Nancy Hughes explains the details of the trips and shares her valuable learning experience with readers.

Amazon and the Andes, and Orchids of Peru. Botanical Medicines will be held from Oct. 9th through the 19th and will include a trip to the canopy tower near Posada Amazonas and a night walk while exploring and learning about medicinal plants in the Amazon. The Orchids workshop will be held from Oct. 6th to the 15th. Participants will be able to explore the different species of Orchids as well as visiting the city of Cusco and viewing the sunrise at Machu Picchu. To learn about the itinerary and contact information, visit the ACEER website. Check out the links below to see flyers for the workshops.
