

The Greater Philadelphia Women's Studies Consortium Presents

Gender, Race, and University Administration:
A Conversation with Dr. Beverly Daniel Tatum

FEBRUARY 8TH AT 4:00 PM

Dr. Beverly Daniel Tatum, president emerita of Spelman College, is the author of the best-selling book, Why Are All the Black Kids Sitting Together in the Cafeteria? And Other Conversations about Race.

Reflecting on her experience as a Black woman in an academic career spanning four decades, in roles ranging from adjunct lecturer to college president, Dr. Tatum will discuss strategies for navigating and challenging the institutionalized racism and sexism of the academy and why diverse leadership matters to the future of higher education.
