The West Chester University Wind Conducting Symposium is designed to provide musicians the opportunity to sharpen conducting skills, strengthen score study techniques, broaden knowledge of wind literature and refine rehearsal strategies. Students may participate in the symposium in one of two different levels. Conducting participants will conduct chamber ensembles during the morning sessions and a full wind ensemble in the afternoon. Participation at this level will be limited to the first fourteen applicants with paid deposits. Additional information is available at www.wcupa.edu/WindConductingSymposium or email Dr. Andrew Yozviak ayozviak@wcupa.edu with questions.

The West Chester University Wind Conducting Symposium is part of the Samuel Barber Institute for Music Educators. For more information visit https://www.wcupa.edu/music/SamuelBarber.aspx
Symposium Overview

The West Chester University Summer Wind Conducting Symposium is designed to provide musicians the opportunity to sharpen conducting skills, strengthen score study techniques, broaden knowledge of wind literature and refine rehearsal strategies. Conductors may participate in the symposium in one of two different levels. Conducting participants will conduct chamber ensembles during the morning sessions and a full wind ensemble in the afternoon. Participation at this level will be limited to the first sixteen applicants with paid deposits. Observers will be engaged in all of the daily activities but will not conduct the ensembles.
